

Victory Ranch Completes Summer Session

Buckaroos Graduate from Kids & Horses Education Program

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA — August 20, 2014 — The Summer session of the Kids & Horses Education Program has finished. The students from three social service agencies have graduated as Buckaroos. Victory Ranch Inc. provides an innovative equine program that unites disadvantaged, under served, and under privileged kids with the magical therapy of horses and ponies. This is an educational opportunity for these kids to learn the basics of horses and horsemanship that includes riding for the last three of ten sessions over a five-week span.

Innovative program conducted on a horse ranch – kids enjoy an outdoor experience

Victory Ranch provides sessions with friendly horses and ponies that are fun, safe and unique for the whole family. Kids learn about their four-legged friends – what they eat, how they communicate, and why they are special. The goal for the participants is to also to learn how to ride. Kids and their families experience the loving connection these friendly ponies and horses provide. Smiles and laughter are the welcomed results of this happy, healing, and rewarding outdoor experience, a breath of fresh air from the children's daily routines. This unique equestrian program leaves the students with improved communication skills, renewed self-confidence, and a transformed sense of self-achievement... rewards that leave a lifetime impression with these challenged youth. The program is free to these participants.
